Case - Timothy N. Pfeiffer, Subject - Homicide, New Brunswick, N.J.,   312/general Operative - 312.

October 31, 1922.   Continuing on the above matter, Operative visited the vicinity of Nelson & Albany Sts., also the railroad station at New Brunswick, N.J., and while at the railroad station Operative noticed several men in conversation and overheard the following remarks.   "Well it was a sedan."
"No, it was a Buick Car." "Well I guess no one knows what kind of a car it was, because those bootleggers use different cars each time - The Police of New Brunswick was to get busy and check up on some of those cars, if they did so they would be doing something instead of ducking in places and killing time; I never see the Police have such a snap as they have here. Well I guess it is all graft."   Then said, "I will tell you a funny one, I was in Town sometime ago and was waiting about the station, I was working one of those taxi fellows about a sporting house, and he told me that there were several in Town, and then directed me down to where the Green Lunchroom is. Well the next time I came to New Brunswick, I visited the house in question and at the very door of the place a cop was talking to a woman, and this cop seemed to be a booster for the establishment, and while in conversation with him he told me where I could get a drink for 50¢. Well, I thought it was rich to go in a Town and have a cop put you right." This man went on to relate what a wide-open Town it was.

Upon leaving the railroad station, Operative proceeded to the Middlesex Lunchroom, entering there at about 1.30 p.m.

At the time Operative entered the above mentioned place there was a police officer in there with Shield #7. This Police Officer sat down, lit a cigarette and entered into conversation with a reporter in regards to the Hall Case. This Officer in question was overheard to remark, "Well, I will tell you they were never killed there, they were most likely killed in the old farm house and then taken over there." From that point on, the reporter
